

WikiRights goes everywhere

Who wants to know their rights?

The Underpaid

People with Disabilities

The Unemployed

Single Parent Families, Veterans, Anyone with Chronic Disease

Parents of Children with Special Needs
(Learning disabilities, Autism...)

Anyone who Wants to Know about Tax Breaks

A grayscale photograph of a desk setup. In the foreground, a person's hand is visible, resting on a computer mouse. To the left of the mouse is a keyboard. Further back and to the left is a mug. The background is dark and out of focus. The overall tone is professional and contemplative.

Is there anyone who does not need to know about their rights?

But, how would you learn about your rights?

Google!

But...

You get TOO MUCH information

It is written in legal language

It tries to draw you to lawyers or advocacy agencies

Wouldn't it be great if everyone could find all the information in one place?

In plain language?

For free?

Meet Kol Zchut: WikiRights Israel

A non-profit, collaborative project that provides information on social benefits

Last year we served more than 5 Million unique users with 7,000 articles

In Hebrew, Arabic, English

More than 30% of the Israeli population

Our customer surveys show

50% positive processes

Users demography in line with general demography in all aspects income, age, gender, sector, geography

Very high satisfaction levels for consumers as well as Social Workers

We cooperate with 100+ government, non-profit and academic organizations including Social Security and multiple ministries

All Rights is something that as CEO you dream of... We cooperate with them on a daily base...we help them [All Rights Israel] in writing and updating materials...”

Prof. Shlomo Mor Yosef, former CEO, Israel Social Security

We operated until 2017 with an annual budget of less than

$500K

and the equivalent of 7 full time employees (most of them editors)

We are proud of our accomplishments in Israel, and eager to extend the model to all democracies.
